Alexandra's practice focuses on class action defence and appeals. She has several years of experience providing strategic legal advice in complex, high-profile class action lawsuits before the Superior Court, the Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court, involving claims across a broad variety of industries, in the fields of:

- consumer protection
- product liability
- privacy law
- health law
- competition law
- environmental law

Alexandra is sought-after for her strategic thinking, intellectual rigour, and experience developing compelling arguments in complex class action lawsuits. She also values contributing to legal scholarship and has authored law journal articles in the fields of class action defence and Indigenous rights; full references in the Insights & Events section below.

Before joining BLG, she articulated with a global law firm in Montréal and served as a law clerk to the Honourable Justice Russell Brown, of the Supreme Court of Canada.

In 2021-2022, Alexandra took a one-year academic leave to pursue a Master of Public Policy at the University of Oxford (Lincoln College), as a Blavatnik School of Government Public Service Scholar.
